Desert Women artists

If you are wondering what's hanging in the gallery right now then call in for a treat. A great selection of Desert Women Artists is on display with stunning new works from Makinti Napanangka, Elizabeth Marks Nakamarra, Lilly Kelly Napangardi and Barbara Reid Napangarti.

Kaltjiti rugs

A cross-cultural rug project is bringing life and opportunity to two groups of community artists geographically far removed from each other being based in South Australia's remote and traditional Anangu Pitjantjatjara Yankunytjatjara Lands and in Srinagar, the turbulent capital of Kashmir. Art Mob has stocked a range of these beautiful creations from artists including Tali Tali Pompey and Inawinytji Williamson.

Export sales

July was a record month for export sales from Art Mob. Web site interest is also at a record level with over 250,000 hits for the month. The review of buying art on the internet in the last copy of Australian Art Collector must have helped!

Pink

Talk about colour power! The launch of Pink 2005 was well attended with guests in pink adornment sipping rosé from Delamere Vineyard. Even the gallery director wore a pink shirt with compliments of Ci Simon. This exhibition caught the attention of a key London collector who purchased the signature piece and its twin by Josie Petrick Kemarre by phone just as the launch was happening.

New Balgo works

With the current coordinators at Balgo Hills moving on soon Euan has helped them on their way by acquiring some significant paintings by leading artists including Eubena Nampitjin, Boxer Milner and Helicopter. Check them out under Artists/ Balgo Hills on the web site at artmob.com.au.

Wandjinas

Considerable interest was created at Sothebys recent auction in paintings depicting the Wandjina. A Charlie Numbulmoore painted on wood went for a staggering $71,000. How about a smaller Alec Mingelmanganu from the 1960's about 25cm high from Art Mob for $2,000?

Sylvana Napanangka Marks

Sylvana Napanangka Marks is a young Papunya artist and is from the Luritja region. She is the foster daughter of highly acclaimed artist Mavis Nampitjinpa. She paints detailed imagery of the distribution of various forms of bush tucker from her region near Mount Liebig.
