Dennis Nona

Congratulations Dennis! Very few artists feature in 2 successive years in Australian Art Collector's Top 50 Most Collectable Artists list. After his recent exhibition Zugalua Euan decided that the works were so good that we kept the whole exhibition. An excellent selection of framed & unframed works are ready for immediate delivery. Check out our website for what is available.

Farewell William Jungala King

The first works that Art Mob bought from William early this year were his Celebration of Life series – fine interlocked circles painted in metallic acrylics showing the interconnectivity of all things. William passed away very recently and we mourn with his family. His works explored the colour of country and his philosophical approach to life. We have dedicated a wall in the gallery to his works in memory of this special man for the next few weeks.

New Works

Although the gallery always looks full, our stock turn is actually about 10 months. Most luxury businesses would rate a 2 year stock turn as being good. Howard's intervention in NT has been immortalised by Marilyn Davies in a recent painting. Check it out on the back page. Other new works are from Dinny Nolan, Eubena Nampitjin, Helicopter Tjungurrayi, George Tjungurrayi, Sarrita King amongst others.

New staff

Emma's leaving for warmer work in Brisbane after 3 years at Art Mob. We'll all miss her. Jessica moves in to take her place. Come by this month to farewell Emma and greet Jessica! Max and Euan aren't moving.

Water Dreamings

With world attention focussed on climate change the importance of water has become paramount. Our Aboriginal people have had this same focus for 50,000 years. Our January exhibition features paintings by Janet Nakamarra Long, Alison Nampitjinpa Anderson, Dinny Tjampitjinpa Nolan and others. Janet will be painting at Art Mob around that time – an amazing Warlpiri artist – don't miss her!

This story is about the intervention that is happening about Central Australia & Northern Territory. It talks about health, housing, welfare/well being of our children, education, drugs, alcohol - this affected our people. This intervention was also back in the '60s when our children was taken away - stolen generation. Government bodies want control of our Aboriginal people.

Thomas Tjapaltjarri Tingari 2007

Acrylic on Italian linen 1435 x 1085mm $4500

During the creation era, Tingari ancestors gathered at a series of sites for Initiation Ceremonies. They travelled from across the country, performing rituals at specific sites that created the natural features of the landscape. The creation stories and rituals are still portrayed in song cycles, paintings and ceremonies and are part of the continuous teaching to the next generation. In painting Tingari Cycle, the artist is depicting the song cycle associated with the artist's many dreaming sites and the locations of significant natural sites in the Gibson Desert.
